WORD

We present this volume of The Buffalo in the hope that when the present becomes obscure each of you will find among these pages at least one link to bridge the interval of years and afford a partial sketch which will enable you to fill in more realistically all the fun, experiences, and associations which made your years at Milligan interesting and worth while to you.

GOD'S FOOTSTEPS

*The purple haze on Buffalo,
The vapor floating high,
The pictures in the vale below,
Their image in the sky,
All these combine to please and bless
And fill my soul with thankfulness.*

*If with His brush and colors rare
The artist paints this view,
And puts such pictures in the air
With tints that are so true,
Shall I deny His deity
And say that chance paints what I see?*

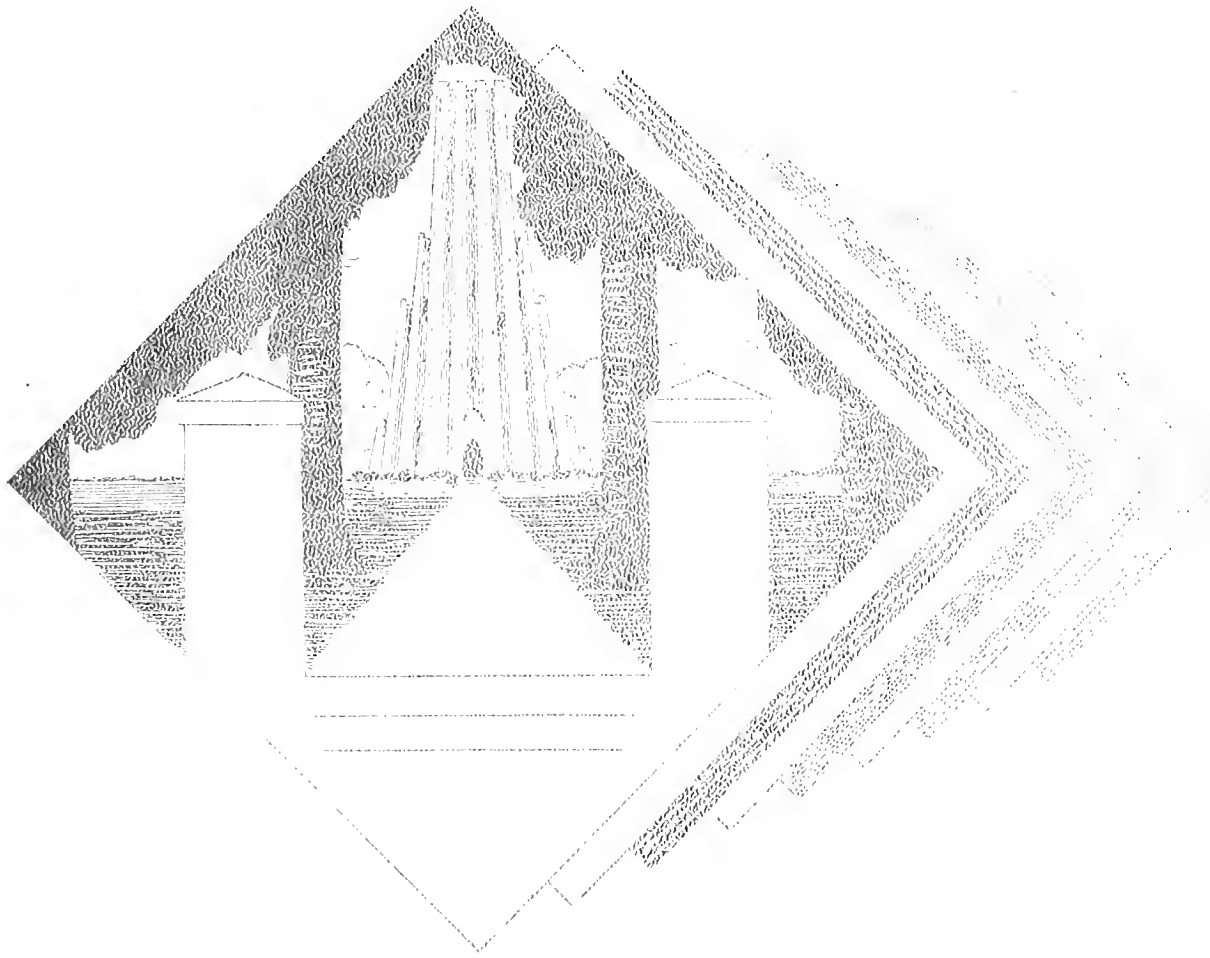

*The subtle spell of such a scroll
Can fill me all with awe,
And call from out my inmost soul
Respect for love and law;
The hand that spreads those colors there
Inspires my soul to breathe a prayer.*

*On Buffalo and up above
Lie mist and purple haze;
I'm sure that One whom I could love
Has traced, in all these ways,
His footsteps, which are those of One
Who made the earth and stars and sun.*

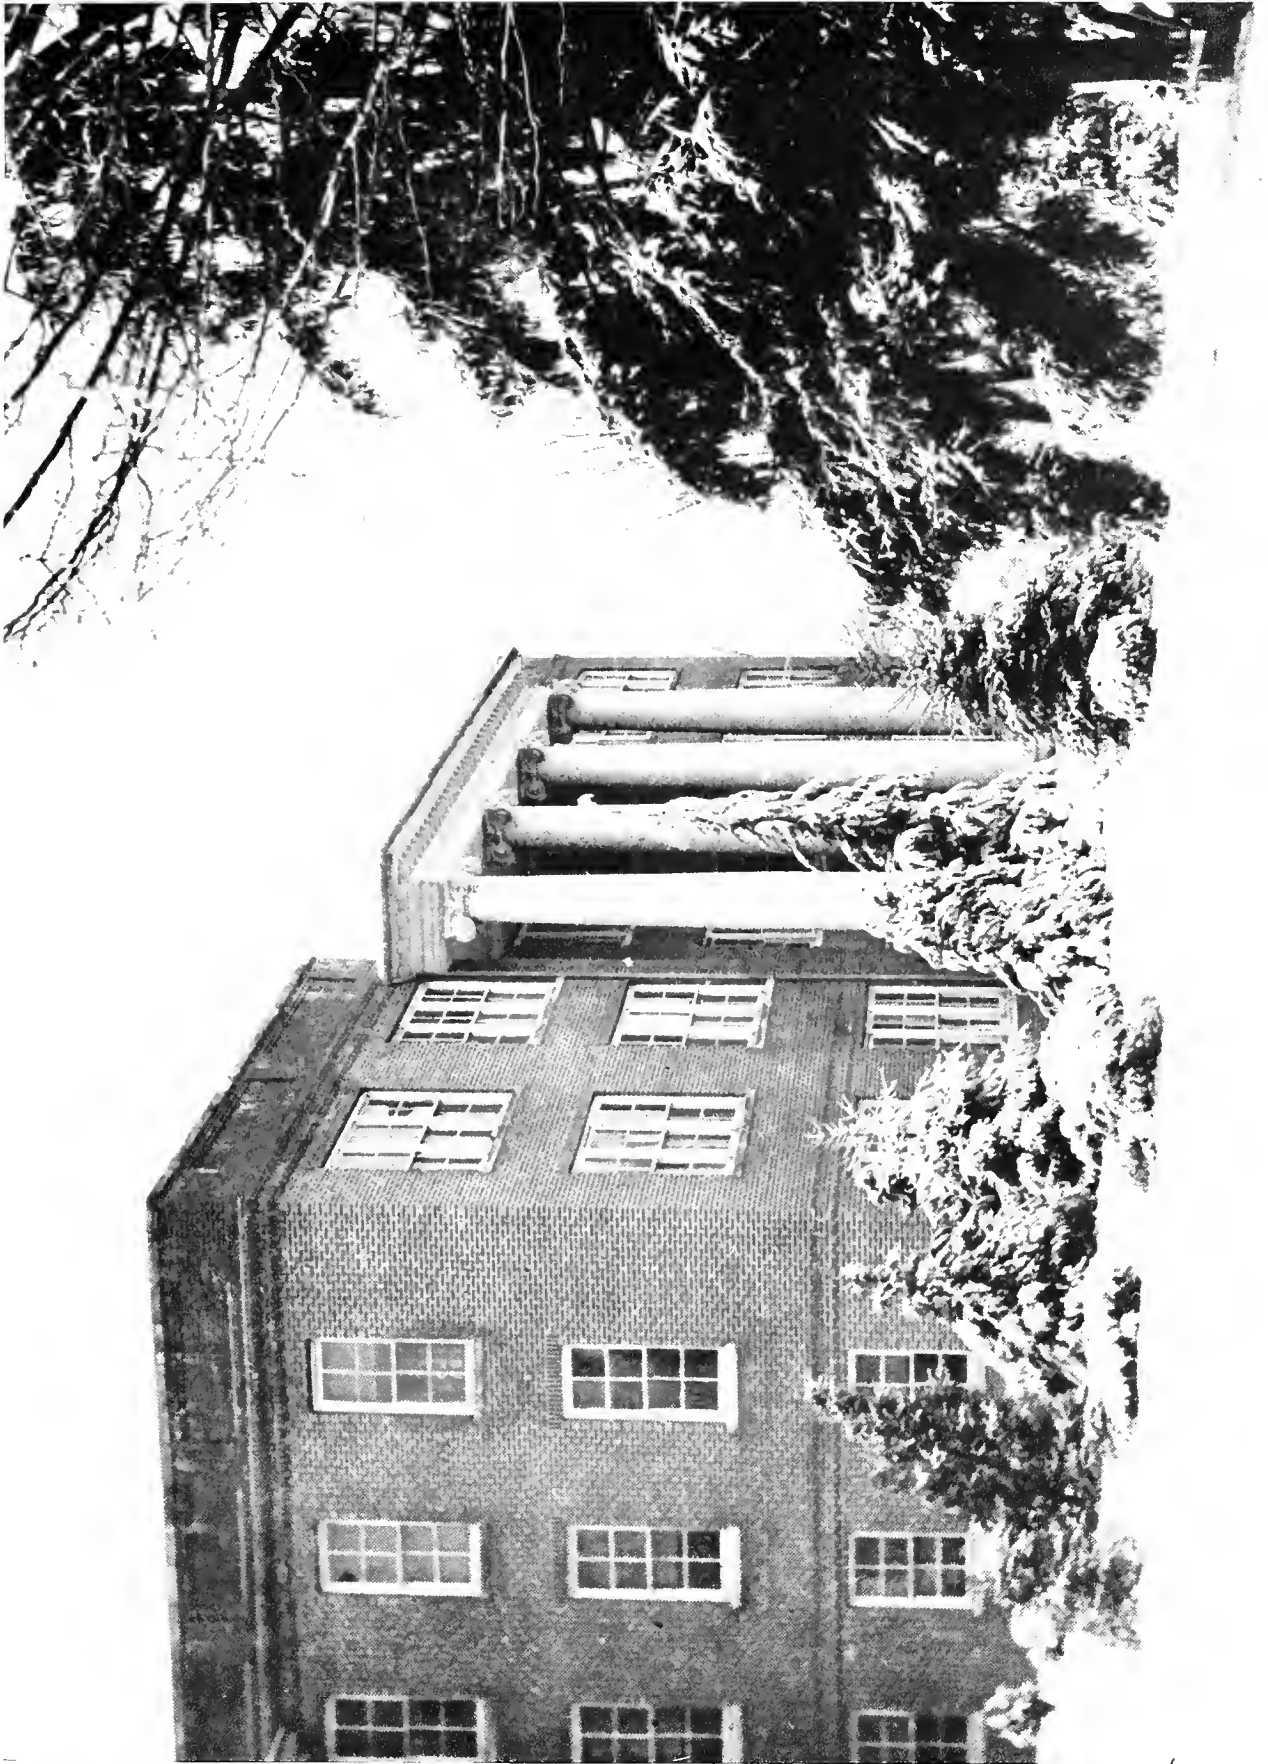

*No artist puny e'er could trace
One-half the colors rare
That He has lavished on this place
And mingled with this air;
So God is here, right well I know
His footsteps are on Buffalo.*

About 1920, while teaching at Milligan College, Professor Poage was inspired to write this poem on the grandeur and subdued beauty of Buffalo Valley and Buffalo Mountain.

DRAMATIC CLUB

The Dramatic Club aspires to make itself a dramatic workshop in which setting, make-up and coaching may be studied. The club accepts its members only after they have been coached and have appeared in a tryout play before the club. This club has a senior organization known as "The Masque," made up of students who have earned their way to this coveted organization by playing a leading role in a major play or three minor roles.

The Dramatic Club produces many one-act plays during the year and entertains in the adjoining towns for different clubs and organizations.

The club feels that a peculiar benefit can come from an interchange of dramatic performances. So this year it made an innovation in its program which it hopes will prove a precedent for many years. Much pleasure and benefit were received by an exchange of plays with Carson-Newman College and Lincoln Memorial University, Milligan presenting the "Importance of Being Earnest," by Oscar Wilde; Carson-Newman, "Smiling Through"; and L. M. U., "Tennessee Valley." By these exchanges the cordial relationships of the three colleges were greatly enhanced, each college being gracious hosts to the various groups of players.

The "Importance of Being Earnest" has been presented on seven different occasions and was sponsored by numerous organizations.

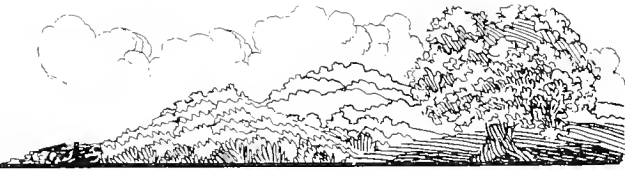

The commencement play was the "Barber of Seville," by Beaumarchais.

The club is proud of the work of many of its present as well as former members. This year it regrets to lose through graduation some of its most valuable members. The club bids Godspeed to Elsie Price, Delma Huddleston, Summers Jones, and Leslie Wood.

Football Squad

On September 1, about thirty men gathered on Anglin Field to learn the art of the "pigskin game." More than half of this group of men were new and inexperienced, but were eager and willing to demonstrate their football abilities. The first game with Lees-McRae College of North Carolina netted the Buffs their first victory. The Buffaloes hit their stride against King College and throttled the Tornado to the tune of 28-14. The Herd drove hard against their traditional rivals, the Johnson City Teachers College, but the Buccaneers eked out a hard-fought 9-6 victory. Thus ended a comparatively favorable season, the team finishing with about a .500 average in the conference.

Several men starred at different times during the season. The outstanding players were G. Harvey and E. Harvey, full and halfback; Sturgill, halfback; Baker, halfback; Taylor, quarterback; Hale and Labowicz, ends; Kiser and Snodgrass, tackles; and Sanders and Boatman, guards.

Irvin, end, and G. Harvey co-captained the team this year. Next year Taylor and Baker, both backfield men, have been chosen to lead the team. Even though Witt, Irvin, G. Harvey, E. Harvey, Kiser, Range, and Anderson will not play with the Buffaloes next year, right now it appears that the team will be an extremely dangerous foe, and prospects for a highly successful season are bright. Look out for the Buffs—they're stampeding!

BASKETBALL

When the coach called the roll at the first practice in November, only five veterans of former Buffalo battles answered that they were ready to try to regain the supremacy lost in the previous campaign. But there was a bevy of youngsters from the freshman class, the finest Milligan has had in many years, who said that they were aspirants for some of the places made vacant by the Buffaloes who had not returned. After looking over the material, the coach was heard to say that the Buffaloes might suffer some reverses in January, but that February would find the going tough for the opposition. And such was the case!

Drills soon disclosed that some of the veterans would have a hard time holding their regular positions. Substitutions for the old warriors became more frequent, and the old men battled harder to maintain their places. It was a glorious practice session! Most of us know what happened. The Buffaloes engaged in sixteen conference contests, won ten, and lost six for a two-game better average than the season of 1934-35. But this team accomplished something that the one before it had left undone: it defeated the Emory and Henry squad for the first time in three years, and it defeated the conference champions in a satisfactory manner.

The letter men, Captain Ayers, Captain-elect Albright, Bolling, Shelley, Perkins, Gilley, Nave, Varnell, Fair, McLean, Labowicz, and Hamlin, were pushed to their utmost by such fine third-string material as George Swaney, Joe Swaney, Alderson, John George, and others. These men made practices very interesting by their driving tactics during the entire season, and the whole campus will miss its guess if some of these men are absent from the varsity roster next year.

Farewells by graduation to Captain Ayers and his able substitute, Gilley. These two men have done a great deal for basketball at Milligan. May they do as much in the future for themselves and for the line of work which they choose to follow is the wish of THE BUFFALO staff.

THE BUFFALO

THE BUFFALETTES

Coach Lacey again brings the Buffalettes through a very successful season. Cooperating with him were Captain Delma Huddleston, Manager Bernice Carmack, and the team itself which emerged victorious from five out of six intercollegiate games, gaining for themselves the right to contend for the East Tennessee championship.

The Buffalettes lose through graduation Shirley Scott, a small but efficient forward, and Captain Delma Huddleston whose performance as forward has been exhilarating to the fans and an inspiration to the team. Who can forget the times when in just the last minute to play that one point made by Huddleston in a foul shot meant a victory for the Buffalettes? And speaking of individual skill—that one-handed “sling-at-the-goal” habit of Pauline Orr’s has brought the team through many a tough place. Neither can we fail to mention the stalwart Bet Redmon, who is a difficult opponent for any guard. We also have hopes for Flossie—the Blonde Blizzard, also a freshman.

The low scores of the opponents speak well for the work done by the star guards, Rice, Qualls, and the newly-found sophomore, Parris. The freshman material has been far from discouraging, and Coach Lacey has made the most of it. The outlook for the team of '37 is certainly bright and exciting considering the abilities displayed by Burns, Redmon, Keisling, and Culvahouse and the proved talents of Rice, Qualls, Orr, and Cox.

ADON

Dear Love Unity Liebchen Freude -

Shall I begin by telling how fine you are and all the rest of the like? Or shall I start off with a cheery happy word to keep you from being blue? I'll do neither. I don't know why I like you and I'm not going to try to find a reason. Maybe it's because you're you. That's the only reason I can possibly think off. I'll accept that one anyway.

You know, when I start thinking of you I think of so many other things like peaches and beans and olives and grapes and German and hicks and apples and rain and soda and conference and ten thousand and one other things which really shouldn't be mentioned here. You'll just have to remember the rest of the things.

I'm wishing for you the very best in life and I'm saving drives for a lot of excitement and parties for the future. Don't forget I'm to help near the boat.

Remember when you're supposed to write.
Love always and all my ways.

This seems to be the end of the "five" years I have known you and my only regret is that I have not known you longer or have the opportunity of seeing you around
